AN OREGON TRAGEDY Railway Employes Given a Chance CHICAGO, July 8 .- [By the Associated Press. | Concerning the published ru-mor that the officers of the Illinois

Central Railway Company are seeking to induce employés to invest their sav ings in securities of that corporation. President Fish said today that the ompany has no stock for sale, but roposes to assist any of its officers or a fair market price, the purchaser to pay in sums of not less than five dol-lars. On these sums interest is to be credited, and when the share is paid for he can, if he wishes, begin with the railroad as a partner, on the basis of the utmost liberaity to the small proprietor. It is not proposed to form a savings bank, or benevolent association, the experience of the company being that the men prefer to handle these matters themselves. The purchaser may at any time have his contract canceled and the money returned to him with interest. Thus the company assumes the entire risk turned to him with interest. Thus the company assumes the entire risk of a fall in the price of shares and the expense of doing the work.

President Fish's belief is that this plan, properly presented, will induce greater thrift among the men and through their example spread among the people the habit of saving and inthrough their example spread among the people the habit of saving and investing in the securities of the railroad which runs past their doors. The ultimate object is to produce a community of interest between citizens and railways which shall give the perfection of railway service and the most profitable of investments for small proprietors in sound, dividend-paying railway shares.

The report of the committee on resolutions was read by the chairman of the committee, Judge Carpenter, as

Resolved, that the Republicans of Los Angeles county in convention assembled reaffirm the principles enumerated in the platforms of the party adopted by the State and National Republican conventions of 1888 and renew their allegiance to that great political party which has produced a Lincoln and a Grant and their illustrious assoclates and successors and under successive administrations of which the country has enjoyed unexampled prosperity for a period administrations of which the country has enjoyed unexampled prosperity for a period of thirty years—a prosperity which a single Democratic administration, under the check of a Republican Senate, was unable to seriously retard.

Resolved, that the administration of President Harrison has met the just expectations of the country, has been marked by prudence, wisdom, statesmanship and a conscientious regard for the interests of the whole people.

scientious regard for the interests of the whole people. Resolved, that in eliminating from the rules of the House of Representatives the absurd legal fictions which have for more than three-quarters of a century clung like barnacles to them, enabling a minority to defeat the majority, to retard public business and seriously delay and cripple the operations of the Government, the Republican members of the present Congress, and especially the clear-headed, intrepid and pa triotic Speaker, the Hon. Thomas B. Keed, have rendered a distinguished service for which they are entitled to the thanks and the confidence of the whole country.

Resolved, that the sincere and well-considered efforts of a Republican Congress to subjust the tariff on imports to the present and future conditions of the country, and in consonance with the great American principle to protection, and to enact a law which shall restore silver to its rightful place as one of the money metals of the country—both measures of great importance to the Pacific Coast States—are evidence of the Statesman-like breadth of view of the Congressional leaders of the Republican party, and renew their title to the confidence of the country.

Resolved, that the long and honorable career of the senior Senator of this State, ifon, Leland Stanford, as Governor, publiciat, and as the moving spirit in vast enterprises that have resulted in populating and enriching the Pacific Coast, and as one who has endowed a State institution of learning in so princely a way that it will ever remain a menument to his foresight, public

The Chair then suggested that a recess be taken for ten minutes, to give the various districts and wards a chance to select their delegates.

When the convention was next called to order a motion to assess the delegates one dollar each, to pay the expenses of the convention, was put and voted down.

A motion to make the assessment only fifty cents was put and carried.

THE DELEGATES.

Just as the chair was about to anounce that a motion to adjourn would be in order Judge Carpenter requested the delegates to remain in the hall after adjournment, as it was necessary for them to arrange for their transportation to Sacramento. E. J. Niles proposed three cheers for Col. Markham, which were cheerfully given. The convention adjourned after the chair had duly thanked them, and they had returned the compliment by thanking both the chair and the secretary. DELEGATES IN CAUCUS As soon as the convention adjourned the delegates to the State Convention met in the hall, when Maj. Bonebrake was chosen permanent chairman of the delegation and W. S. Moore permanent secretary. A committee composed of Messrs. Carpenter, Farnham, Spence, Bone-brake and Bonsall was appointed to make arrangements for transportation and also to arrange for quarters in Sacramento during the convention.

Mr. Frankenfield moved to invite the other delegates from Southern California to meet here and accompany the Los Angeles delegation to Sacra-mento. Carried.

Mr. Osborne moved that the delegates be instructed to refuse to pledge themselves to candidates from any other part of the State.

THE EAST SIDE.

Serious Accident-Personals. A disturbance took place on Monday evening on Downey avenue, between the so-called religious cranks that frequent the avenue every night, much to the annoyance of some of the business firms in that locality, and the hoodlum element that frequent the same locality to get their share of the benefit it derives from the holiness preaching. The police, anticipating there might be some trouble, were on the ground at 8 p.m. sharp, ready to quiet any dis-turbance that might occur during the service, but for some reason the procession of two did not appear on their regular beats. A little before 9 o'clock the two cranks appeared on the scene as usual and commenced their meeting, the other element also commenced their exercises, and for some little tim Gordon was informed by Nordlinger about the watch, and seeing Waite on the street one day, asked him for it. Waite denied having it and was arrested, the watch being found on him. Several witnesses were examined, and the case seems to be a strong one against the defendant.

THE WEYSE DIVORCE CASE was on for a short time yesterday before Judge Wade, but nothing of especial interest was developed. A deposition in regard to the relations of the plaintiff and defendant in the East was read, and the Court took an adjournment until this morning, when the trial will be resumed.

In the course of an essay upon the newspaper of the future, Noah Brooks

The newspaper of the future will rid itself of the smartness and flippancy with which the newspaper of the present is too often disfigured. Its writers will be selected for their learning, careful literary training and fairness of judgment. Verbosity is one of the most dreaded terrors of the average newspaper reader. He is likely to think that an erudite, thoroughly informed writer newspaper reader. He is likely to mina that an erudite, thoroughly informed writer must needs be dull and prosy. Let us admit that we cannot possibly endure long, dull editorial articles, and that we will not have a coloriess, dry statement of facts in the news columns of the journal of our choice. But is it asking too our choice. But is it asking too our choice in the news columns of the journal of human nature—newspaper. the news contains to the news control of human nature—newspaper human nature—newspaper human nature—that the paper shall be crisp and bright without malice, learned and intelligent without duliness? No sensible person expects that political parties are to be disbanded or hooted out of existence. The parties and the newspapers will remain for many a century to come. But men will learn that it pays to be fair and honest in politics as in diplomacy, and in many another field of human activity, in which lying was once thought to be part of the hast samipment. Then readers, tired of another field of flumbs accessly, it lying was once thought to be part of st equipment. Then readers, tired of sit equipment and fairness in itums of the political newspaper, will dided with an answer to their demand the state of the same hims better.

MARKHAM AND VICTORY.

No more respectable body of men ever assembled in Los Angeles county than those who constituted yesterday's forth this further amazing utt convention, nor was ever more harmony, unanimity and enthusiasm displayed on a similar occasion.

The man who could thus elicit the united and enthusiastic support of this great county must possess some solid and substantial qualities of integrity and high character which entitle him stalwart Republicanism which has to the support of the Republicans of made the party that mighty power in the State.

The hearty and unanimous indorsement of this large number of delegates possesses great significance. It is a conclusive answer to the ques- nown in contending for vital princition, by whomsoever asked, as ples, not alone in conflicts with the to the standing of Col. Markham among his fellow-citizens, who know him longest and best. The result will unquestionably go far to give him an indorsement-perhaps equally unanimous-on the part of the other fourteen counties of this Congress district, solution. It is not that stalwart Re-and thus we have a right to expect publicanism which keeps the party life that the 188 votes of the Sixth District will be mainly concentrated on Markham, enabling him to enter the convention with an impressive strength ing factions from within and from that will go far toward securing the nomination

Southern California needs only to be true to berself to secure Gubernatorial nomination to her honored representative. The outlook for victory could scarcely be more propitious.

is projected from vacuity into vacancy by that murky, mushy and mawkish Can it be possible that the stalwart Re-publican newspaper is going out of date, is in the decline?

To any independent, self-respecting modern journalist, to answer this publican newspaper, animated by principle, inspired by manly motives and controlled by capable and selffull flush of its power and influence, more than ever at any other time in the history of American journalism. It is the purely party and private organ, with no mind or will of its own sion from its masters, that is going out of date; in fact, that is gone out of date. The era of this sort of weak and unreliable orsum ever given for a single gan, which was never entitled to the dignity of being called a newsarrons on or about August happily relegated to the limbo of things that were. It was never a usecles of publication, and we reublic when such prints are few and far between. The organ pure and simple had no courage, small ability, no independence, weak integrity, no reliability, and it never told a truth or printed the news unless in doing so it ters, and served the miserable expedience of the hour. If there was corruption in the party or in office to be assailed; if there was a manly fight to be made within the ranks of the party; tacked, or a thief to be exposed, the work was never done by the subservient "organ," for fear it would "hurt the party." The common practice with the party organ in the old THE capital of England exceeds in time was to distort facts, supat will for the sake of supposed party advantage-we say "supposed" beleading cause, in fact, it was no party advanconer or later to cover with confusion the sake of mere temporary advantage. The party's organ of the past had small circulation, weak influence > the confidence of the community or the willing support of the populace Turn now to the regenerated and releemed modern political journal-the journal that gives free and unbought support to its chosen political princiles and to the party rightly organized for carrying those political principles into practical effect. The contrast between such a journal and the party organ of the past is striking, the distance between the two immeasurable. The modern journal, when honestly conducted, though it may at times be intensely partisan, is never slavish nor subservient; it neither suppresses nor distorts the truth at the lictation of party leaders, or through fear of party proscription. It has a soul of its own, and is ever able to proclaim the fact. It does not abate its independence, sell its columns or tremble at the frown of ward bosses. Governors, Congressmen, Senators, or Presidents. Giving its adhesion freely, it is able to bring to the support of its chosen party a power, an influence inconceivable in the truckling organ of the olden time. With large circulation, wide fame and unimpeached mo tives, it is able to render vast and substantial service to the organization, the measures and the men whom it believes to be mostly nearly right on the great questions that affect the rights of the citizens and welfare of the Republic. Maintaining always its sacred and indisputable right to criticize men. measures and motives, it still is able to render to its chosen party the very best possible service, without being answerable to it in the sense that the old-time party organ was answerable.

In short, it fights manfully for fundamental principles, but, knowing the weakness and instability of mere men, it stands ever ready to sound the alarm

It did not possess, nor did it deserve, ple, the sentinel on the watch-tower of liberty, the eye of the citizen.

The same truckling, back-number concern which we are quoting gives Staiwart Republicanism should be re-vived, which means that Republican papers should defend Republican officials through thick and thin, defend them from attack, and stand by them as integral parts of the great party. There should be but one ex-ception to this: dishonesty or malfeasance in office.

This is not stalwart Republicanism as we understand it. It is not the the land which it long since became and which it is today. It is not the stalwart Republicanism of the great organized bodies and the illustrious men who have won imperishable recommon enemy, but within the ranks of the Republican party itself. It is not the stalwart Republicanism which gives vitality and force to the party and preserves it from that moribund state of dry rot that inevitably precedes ultimate disfresh and puissant, through its veins that healthy life blood without which it would speedily become inert and the prey of contendwithout. It is not that stalwart Republicanism which was born in the party thirty-five years ago; which enabled it to leap, a young glant, into the arena of national combat, to carry forward a great war waged for the life of the Nation, to save the Republic, to free the slave, to restore the national credit, to rehabilitate the States, to vindicate the national honor, and to make the flag once more respected throughout the world. To accomplish The following profound conundrum these great ends, which have justly made the Republican party immorta required conflict—conflict—conflict—ever conflict, because no great thing is accomplished in this world without a struggle, without conflict. Events do not come to pass without moving causes. Circumstances do not make themselves. "I make circumstances," said the great made circumstances; it has made history; it has made fame; it has made itself; it has averted dissolution, preserved its own life and secured its perpetuity. How? Not by subserviency on the part of its own members; not by craven submission to the dictation of self-constituted leaders; not by mealy mouthings that party leaders and party officials "must be supported through thick and thin," save when they openly commit crime; not by padlocking the mouth or closing the eyes on the part evils are seen to be growing up within the organization. The Republican ments and attained the proud position which it occupies by intelligence, vigilance, independence, courage and activity on the part of its members—by action—action—action always action, when the exigencies the situation demanded it. It has been compelled, more than once, to slough off corrupt element, to foil traitors, to discipline the unruly, to curb the usurpers, to punish revolt, to cast out heretics and to reward the faithful. From where has come the power to do these things? Not from the top, not from the leaders; but from the bottom, from the masses—from the source of all power, THE PEOPLE. It is the people whom we must trust.

What manner of public journal is it the situation demanded it. It has that gives utterance to the sentiments which we have here denounced? It is a pretentious publication that brazenly calls itself a representative Republican newspaper-a concern that, with adaundertakes to read lectures to Republican contemporaries because they recriticism. It is a private organ, long since notoriously debased and corrupted; a publication which made itself infamous by blackmail practices; which has shamelessly acquired coin by other devious methods, which long since became a mendicant and a beggar; which has been more than once in the clutches of the Sheriff; which, with ill-concealed prostitution, has fastened itself upon the skirts of favor-purchasing politicians; which, in a thousand ways, has reduced itself to a status of a harlot in journalism, a procurer in politics, a fakir in finance, a pariah in society, and a creature which has been off color in its line of de-scent from its vicious beginning. The spectacle of such a publication, such a notoriously creoked concern, indulging in a diatribe on party morality and journal-istic decorum is a spectacle to make men objurgate and angels weep. A newspaper, or rather, we should say, a private organ which has so little hold upon the public confidence that it is forced to maintain its precarious existence by the aid, largely, of the extorted contributions of ambitious, foolish or corrupt politicians has small right to take the lecture field on the subject of party fealty and journalistic duty.

LONDON, July 8 .- [By Cable and Associated Press.] Another disorderly mob gathered in Bow street tonight, but mounted police preserved order. At 10 o'clock all taverns about Bow street were cleared and several persons were arrested. The mob made a furious attempt to rescue them, and a battle ensued, in which several constables were badly injured. After midnight the excitement all subsided.

The policemen who were arrested for assaulting their superior officers yesterday have been sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment. The men are weakening. They have no organization and it is not likely they ganization and it is not likely they will attempt to enforce their demand by a general strike. It is probable, however, that further isolated disturbances may occur. Constables who were dismissed for connection with the trouble are petitioning the authorities for reinstatement.

The Conclave Opened-Queer Story
About Tabooed W nas. MILWAUKEE (Wis.,) July 8 .- By the Associated Press. | A story was in circulation this morning that Gen. The firemen were slow in reaching the scene, and the water sup-California brought along a carload of the output of Pacific Coast vineyards. The features of the morning in Pythian conclave circles were the grand reception at the Exposition building and opening of the deliberations of the Supreme Lodge. The exercises at the Exposition building were opened by the Mayor, who made a speech of welcome. The Governor followed with a welcome on the part of the people of Wisconsin. Following the reception, the members of the Supreme Lodge were escorted to the Westilde Turner Hall, which was provided for their use during the Supreme Lodge session, and the first meeting of that body was opened.

Approximately afteen thousand men responded to reveille at Camp Carnahan this morning, but for anything that was positively known at Gen. Carnahan's headquarters there might have been a million men under the tents is at night. There is a deplorable lack of system about the management of the camp and the responsibility does not seem to rest on the shoulders of any particular person. Up to noon only two brigades had submitted to Adjt.-Gen. McKee reports of the number of men under their jurisdiction. Several cases of prostration from heat were reported yesterday and today, but none serious. The Red Cross Society established a hospital on the grounds and is caring for some cases of sickness.

The parade of Knights of Pythias, in spite of the almost unbearable heat, was a great success. Ten thousand men were in line. The fifth brigade was composed of one hundred and fifty Californians and Knights from other western States under command of Gen. George H. Schaefiner.

Commander Carnahan strenuously denounced the story to the effect that he had refused the California delegation admission to quarters because they wanted to bring wine and liquors into camp. "It is a vicious lift, and seems to have been printed with malicious intent," the General said. "There is no California division hem, and I have not yet met a single man from that State. Dr. F. B. Cherington conducted the morning institute, giving an admirable and meaty lecture on "Pastoral Theology." He claborated upon the duties of the ministry and illustrated what preachers should be and preach from the lives and work of the world's great preachers.

Col. Copeiand promised to "Tie Up That Dog" at 11 o'clock, which he did, so far as a stirring temperance lecture can do it. He began by paying a glowing tribute to Col. Bain as a magnificent temperance orator. "It is usual nowadays to take temperance lecturers from three classes: Ministers, reformed drunkards and women. I am none of these, but of the three, I would rather be a woman." He then scored a telling point for woman's rights, saying: "I was a lawyer before I reformed. The trend of my thoughts is in that line. I have nothing pleasant to say about the rum power. I do not love the rum seller as some lecturors seem to do. I am here to denounce the rum traffic and all who eneage in it. I think the temper-who engage in it. I think the temperance people in the past have made some mistakes, and one of them is tolerance. It takes the fire and hoe and salt to root out the thistle. An era tolerance. It takes the fire and hoe and salt to root out the thistle. An era of law for this evil is dawning upon us. Intemperance is not a misfortune, but a crime. There never has been tolerance for any other crime. Systems of license are only used to pander to pothouse political managers. I favor positive prohibition. Everything in the universe or our lives is under the influence of law, and every violation of it meets with sure punishment. Providence has nothing to do with it.

"A wicked proposition is that of the right of the citizen to do any thing that will offend society or the body politic. Can't a man have smallpox if he wants it, and be let alone? No, sir! A man cannot make a hogwallow by your hause and not have it absted. I denounce that saloon in Long Heach as a worse nuisance than a hogwallow, and exhort you citizens to abate it. [Applause.] All laws should work for the good of the people. We do not have to discuss now, as we once did, the wrongness of the rum business. Liquor used to be used everywhere—in the harvest field, at every sideboard, and ministers even used to 'set 'em up.' The old arguments to belster up its use are all dead. It is not a good force, but a most powerful antiseptic—not digestible. Arsenic is much the same kind of poison. It is a stimulant—so is a whip. A man might sit on a hornet's nest and get a It is a stimulant—so is a whip. A man might sit on a hornet's nest and get a stimulant, but it would not be nourishstimulant, but it would not be nourishing."

The Colonel pronounced a magnificent eulogy upon the human mind, which elicited great applause, and continued: "This great evil has done more to pull down the glorious mental powers of brilliant mea than any other evil in the world. There is more liquor drank in our great Capitol than in any four saloons in the land. There is not another nation in the world that permits a saloon in the shadow of its capitol. Is it any wonder that we have corrupted politics? My voice and vote shall be heard till that the bar has been abolished. It will not be sent out till men are elected to do it. A resolution was passed saying that not a drop should be sold there, and daily members came out intoxicated on—cold tea. I stand on the oil cloth, thermometer at zero, on the oil cloth, thermometer at zero, dropping paregoric by moonlight, because I love my baby. I love my children. I am working to take away the shadow of the saloon from over my boy. Whisky don't burt me, but it robbed me of a childhood. A noblehearted, gifted man had not the power to resist the levalized curse. The robbed me of a childhood. A noblenearted, gifted man had not the power to resist the legalized curse. The State of New York killed my father.
The meanest argument is that you cannot stop drunkenness by law. It is a mean man who prays God to feed the hungry, and in a scarcity puts up the pride of bread.
You may pray the roof off this Tabernacle but you cannot remove that saloon without backing up your prayers by acts of law. If a man comes into my bedroom at night to bludgeon me, will I say, 'Brother, let us pray?' No!
I will break every bone in his body and, when he can do me no damage, I will pray with him. If I beat a man's brains out I am a murderer. If I hire another man to do it, I am a murderer.
You who vote to license are as bad as the man who shoves the liquor over the bar. You are responsible for the crimes which come through the saloon."
The Colonel told good stories to illustrate his points, and held his audience for almost two hours.

Harvesting Peanuts.

A. F. Reynolds, Les Augeles, in Pacific Monthly.

There are so many peanuts growing this year, and the price will be so low, that it will require some method of harvesting the crop or it will be a dead loss to the farmer. I said in a former article, which was extensively copied by the public press throughout the State, that they should be left on the ground after being pulled, with the nuts underheath the tops, to protect them from dampness and the hot sun, thoreby preserving their bright color, and at the same time leaving them to hang down as much as possible, so that they may be easily knocked off. One other important point, let them One other important point, let them get thoroughly dry, or they will get mouldy and spoil in the sack; put them get thoroughly dry, or they will get mouldy and spoil in the sack; put them under cover as soon as dry.

Now, many have planted this year who have had no experience in the business, and they will turn them over so the sun can dry them quickly. Well, they will dry quick that way, and be black, and hang down among the vines so they will have to be picked out one at a time, which will cost more than they are worth in the market.

Some farmers fasten an old knifeblade to the end of a stick and cut the main root (which is hard to puil) near the surface of the ground, and on which there are no nuts. Then they are easily pulled, and the long taproot will not be in the way of machinepicking or knocking them off by hand.

A very effective picking machine, if properly made, is fashioned after the windlass we used to make in the mines for hoisting dirt; make the drum somewhat larger and drive into it big nails in rows, near enough to catch hold of the nuts, fasten a bar or rest to the frame parallel with the drum, just near enough to let the heads of the spikes pass; beveit the rest of the bar to a thin edge, hold the bunch of vines on the rest with the nuts against the arm, turn the crank, and it will snatch them off in a hurry.

The Side Saddle to Go. The Side Saddle to Go.
[Pacific Rural.]
At last it would appear an effort is to be made to abolish the senseless sidesaddle for women who wish to indulge in horseback riding. Miss Jenness, sister of Mrs. Jenness-Miller, the rising sister of Mrs. Jenness-Miller, the rising apostle of physical education for women and dress reform, is the leader of the movement. Side-saddles were introduced centuries ago by an English queen, with a short and deformed leg, who could ride in no other way. Such is the power and custom of fashion that they have held full sway ever since. The side-saddle develops the muscles of one leg and one side of the body, to the neglect of the other side, but this is not the least of its offenses, for the peculiar position of the body while riding encourages curvature of the spine. Abolish the side-saddle by all means.

A Valuable Cherry Tree.

A Valuable Cherry Tree.

A few years ago the bulk of the cherry crop in this part of the country was confined to the few orchards down on the American River. These orchards are still among the earliest and heaviest bearers, Mr. Hector's famous big Tartarian tree having yielded this year one and one-half tons, worth at least three hundred dollars in the market. Time has proved that it is not only the deep bottom soil along the river that is capable of producing fine cherries.

MR. EDITOR: Although my taxes are small, yet they are as burdensome to me as if I paid much more. And as a tax-payer, I feel that I have a right to criticise those extravagance that are factors in the creation of high taxes. I have in my mind the county hospitel. No sooner does the impecuations citizen become broken down and debilitated, than he rushes off to the hospital. Even persistent dyspepsia and constipation are getting to be excuses for admission. sion. Hence, allow me space to enter my feeble protest against further continuance of this pernicious practice. It costs the county many hard dollars for the treatment of every one of these unicrounates, and it is high time that they should know that they can save the county that expense, and themselves those distressing ail-ments, by the judicious use of a few bottles of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla,—a remedy that within my observation is a sovereign cure for those too common disorders. If they won't take it they ought to be compelled to by some law t they ought to be compensed to b, believe that would meet the case. Under the circumstances a full hospital is inexcusable
